became the storm center of this phase of the situation as soon as the plans of the Roosevelt leaders were perfected last night.

TO INFORM TAFT OF ALL THE MOVEMENTS

President Will Keep in Touch With The Chicago Convention Happenings.

Washington, June 17.—White house officials have made preparations to keep the President informed of each movement at Chicago on the floor of the republican national convention. In addition to the long distance telephone wire from Chicago and the White House, newspaper reports will be received by telegraph and convention news will be carried to the President immediately as it comes over the wire so that he will know each development. The President has accepted an invitation to attend the Philadelphia-Washington baseball game tomorrow but the plans of the Roosevelt managers to force the fight from the opening hours of the convention may keep the President away. Just what Mr. Taft might be able to do to help the fight one thousand miles away has not indicated but it is expected that he will very likely stay at the White House if grave developments are reported over the busy wires from Chicago.

COLONEL RECEIVED DELEGATES TODAY

Roosevelt Met Delegates From Several States Today in His Suite at Hotel Congress.

Chicago, June 17.—In his suite at the Hotel Congress, Colonel Roosevelt this morning received delegates from Indiana, Illinois, New Jersey, and Oklahoma and Massachusetts. The Colonel shook hands with each one individually and chatted with them.

RUMORED ACTION OF ROOSEVELT LEADERS CALLED "PUERILE"

Taft Leaders Declare They Can Block Any Attempt of Colonel's Adherents to Substitute New Roll Call at the Convention.

Chicago, June 17.—Taft forces today characterized as "puerile" the talk about the plans which emanated from the Roosevelt rooms last night of the substitution of a new temporary roll call for the plan created by the nominating committee.

The visit of Chairman Roosevelt to the rooms of Colonel Roosevelt at midnight last night was not known to Mr. Roosevelt's associates in the national committee this morning. They scoffed at the idea that Mr. Roosevelt had sought to make peace with the Roosevelt forces.

SAYS REBELLION IN CUBA IS FINISHED

Commander of Cuban Troops Wires Gomez That He Believes Negroes Will Cause No Further Trouble.

Havana, Cuba, June 17.—General Montenegro, commander of the Government troops, telegraphed the following dispatch to President Gomez this morning: "It is my opinion that the revolution is over. I do not think that a large band of rebels will again form. The surrender of Eugenio La Cuesta the leader of the insurgents in Guantanamo has made a most important effect." He is considered the rebel chief. General Vionet and General Estenoz the rebel commanders are thinking now of their own personal safety.

It will be necessary to hold the greater part of the government troops for protection.

FEES SECURED ARE REPORTED COLLECTED

Madison, Wis., June 17.—According to present indications over $200,000 will be collected this year at the office of the secretary of state for the filing of articles of incorporation of foreign and domestic companies. One of the largest articles to be filed this year was an amendment to the articles of the Standard Oil company which will bring a fee of $1,654 to the state. The state charges a fee of $1 for every thousand dollars of capital. The minimum fee is $25.

Already this year $17,914 has been collected from the filing of articles by domestic corporations; $3,970 from foreign corporations; $3,453.60 from miscellaneous corporations; and $4,409 from corporations previously incorporated, which have increased their capital stock or amended their by-laws. The total amount collected from all these sources aggregates $74,745.70.

The records of the office show that the months of March and April are the most fruitful for the organization of companies in this state. From local companies $5,182 was collected in March and $4,100 was collected in April. The sum of $100 was also collected from employment agencies, as licenses.

MILWAUKEE ITALIAN POLITICIAN KILLED

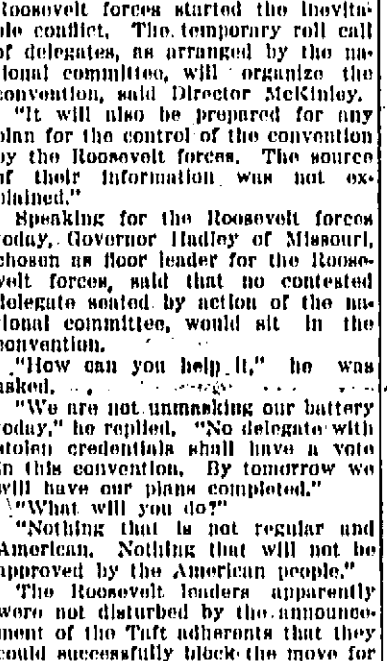

Man Shot by Divorced Wife Died of Wounds.

Chicago, June 17.—William Miller, who was shot by his divorced wife, after he had crawled into her room through a second story window died today, professing that he had merely sought to effect a reconciliation. Mrs. Miller is being held by the police. She asserts that she was seized and choked by her former husband and that she shot him in self defense.

Chicago, June 17.—More than one hundred passengers, including several convention delegates from Georgia, and a number of visitors to the convention, were bruised and cut in a railway accident today when the Pennsylvania passenger train ran into a train of empty cars just outside the Union passenger station. No one was seriously injured.

day were on of whether the republican party is bigger than its controlling body, the national committee or bigger than any individual candidate.

Fears for the order of the convention are freely expressed and predictions of various developments were made during the day. This was the most exciting day that has preceded the opening of the national convention in many years. Caucuses of state delegations were held in an avalanche as there having been only three caucuses held until today.

Colonel Roosevelt arranged for a reception this afternoon at which time he hopes to meet every one of his delegates to the convention. He expected to speak to each delegate personally. Tonight at the public theatre he will give a speech at a large mass meeting of the Roosevelt followers.

Early today Senator Borah finally and definitely was selected as the choice of the Roosevelt forces for the temporary chairman in place of Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri. Governor Hadley because of his successful and clever fight in Missouri's state republican campaign and before the national committee was chosen as floor leader for the Roosevelt organization.

DENY DISAFFECTION OF NEGRO DELEGATES

Georgia Leaders Declare That Sole Deserter Is Clark Grier, a White Delegate—Denounce Committee's Action.

Chicago, June 17.—Georgia leaders today denied disaffection in the ranks of the negroes' delegation. Only one man Clark Grier, a white delegate, had gone over for Roosevelt, said Henry S. Jackson of Atlanta, who was endorsed by the state convention as national committee member. Members and members-elect of the republican national committee in all 48 states denounced the action of the national committee in making up the temporary roll call of the national convention.

MANY NICARAGUANS DYING FROM FAMINE

Great Suffering in Interior as Result of Crop Failures in Republic Imminent.

New Orleans, June 17.—More advice received from Bluefield says that the people are dying from famine in the interior of Nicaragua. Failure of crops is given as the cause. A revolution in the republic is imminent.

ASPHALT EMPLOYEES GO ON SECOND STRIKE

Five Hundred Who Agreed to Return to Work, Leave Factory in Body After Fifteen Minutes' Stay.

Perth Amboy, N. J., June 17.—Five hundred employees of the Barber Asphalt Works who agreed Saturday to return to work marched to the plant filed inside and after standing at their posts fifteen minutes walked out again. Further increase in their wages was denied.

TELEPHONE TODAY

If you have rooms that you care to rent this week and they will be placed in our rooming and boarding house directory at once, and at the same charge as all want ads, one cent a word each insertion. By the expenditure of a few cents many Janesville women will this week gain several dollars.

THESE MEN HELPING TO MAKE HISTORY AT CHICAGO; NAGEL AND NEW ARE FOR TAFT; KENYON PINS FAITH TO DARK HORSE

Charles W. Nagel, of Missouri, secretary of commerce and labor, has lost some of his popularity with those parties who would have victory at any price, Nagel is for Taft, all right, but he thinks his chief should not receive the republican nomination for president unless he can get it fairly.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON'S SUPPORTERS START FOR BALTIMORE CONVENTION

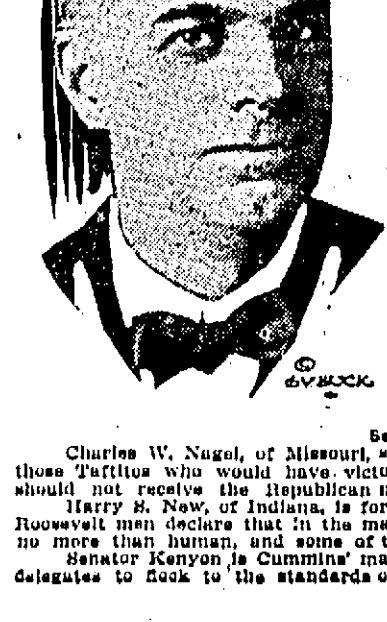

New York, N. Y., June 17.—Jacob Kantor, William P. Black, and Francis D. Gallatin, officers of the Democratic Association of New York for Mayor Gaynor for president, left here for Baltimore today to further the interests of their candidate. At democratic headquarters it was said yesterday that an eleventh hour canvass of all the delegates to the convention had been made with the view to bring about the mayor's nomination. The leaders of the movement said that Gaynor supporters were unauthorized and unknown to him.

SEN. GORE WILL SECOND NOMINATION OF WILSON.

Washington, June 17.—Senator Gore of Oklahoma, who returned today from a conference with democratic leaders in Baltimore, will second the nomination of Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. The motion will be made by John Wescott of Camden, N. J.

VIRTUES THE FRUIT OF SOUND DOCTRINE

SERMON ON PAUL'S CONCEPTION OF ESSENTIALS BY THE REV.
J. J. LAUGHLIN.

TEACHINGS PRACTICAL

Did Not Place Emphasis Upon Professions—Exhorted to Ero-therly Love and Kindness.

That sound doctrine was manifested by virtues and good works rather than by professions and acceptance of a creed was the thought expressed by the Rev. J. J. Laughlin, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who yesterday morning delivered a sermon on the subject, "Things Which Become Sound Teaching."

The Rev. Laughlin took for his text the first verse of the second chapter of Paul's letter to Titus:

"But speak that the things which become sound doctrine."

"One wonders if ever there came to the disciples a question of what they should preach. Did they ever see a Sunday coming and know that they might not have a message for their congregation, one that would be acceptable and at the same time sound in doctrine?"

"There are two kinds of preachers. The first kind is continually trying to find out what the people want to hear, to say what is pleasing and comforting. They are so anxious in their endeavor to satisfy this demand that they fail to deliver a message of vital truth. They champion no reform, they advocate no worthy impulse in their hearers; nobody is hurt and nobody is helped."

"Another class of preachers are persuaded that the message they have to deliver is divine, and that the welfare of the people depends upon their acceptance of it. They do not trim their sermons to suit the mood and fancy of their congregation. With them it is not a question of what to preach, but what phase of the truth to emphasize. They dwell in turn upon the different vital points and indicate their relation to one another, and in this manner present the whole body of Christian truth and doctrine."

"Some denominations are so self-righteous that all parts of the Bible teachings shall be presented that they outline a course of sermons for their ministers. In that case the minister is always subservient and not thrown upon his own resources, but on the other hand the method prevents men from becoming theological or too philosophical, from emphasizing one point to the exclusion of others, and from becoming muddy in order that they may be thought profound."

"It never ceases to be a question of what to preach, as the teacher, and Titus, the pupil, it was settled by Paul's words, embodied in this text and the verses which follow:

"That the aged men be sober, grave, temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience."

"The aged women likewise, that they be in behavior as becometh holiness, not false accusers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things."

"That they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children."

"To be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed."

"Paul might also have added not too anxious to vote, or hasty to run to bridge parties."

"Young men likewise exhort to be sober minded."

"In all things showing thyself a pattern of good works; in doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity."

"Sound speech that cannot be condemned."

"We had an idea that sound doctrine meant adherence to some particular creed, to the doctrine of predestination, foreordination, or adult baptism, but when we examine Paul's teachings, how different and how eminently practical Paul's doctrine is, in the presence of such a life as his pictures, how insignificant some of these questions seem."

"The real value of religion shows itself in the practical affairs of life. How far from the truth are they who believe that it is manifested in ceremonies, in ritual, and investments. Morality is the evidence of religion in the heart, of life in the soul. When Paul talked about virtues he indicated into what channels religion should flow.

"We are coming to understand that the work of the church is to better the condition of men; that our falls and our failures are not to be penal institutions but reformatories, that the poor and oppressed are to have justice and opportunity, the hungry food, and the naked, clothes. In the foreign field, especially, does the church realize the necessity of improving the physical conditions of men and women; of conveying them enlightenment, educating the children, and caring for the sick. They find that this display of love and sympathy makes it easier for men to open their hearts to the inspired message of the gospel."

"The church has to do not only with the virtues of the individual, but with the virtues of society. It does cultivate grace in the individual but it nourishes them in society as well. You need read the gospel but casually to learn that Jesus looked forward to an approaching brotherhood of men."

"The Rev. Laughlin went on to demonstrate through the story of Len O'Neil Browne and Senator Lorimer, how hollow is the religion that inspires private morality but does not touch any responsibility to society. Both men were blameless in their private relations, well acquainted with the Bible and models of virtue in the family relation, but willing to defraud the people at large."

"Religion," continued the speaker, "is right living. I, however, am the last one to say that religion pertains only to this life. I believe in a future state and a future world, and believe that I will enter upon it according as I have lived here. It is religion that teaches men to live well, and it is religion that teaches men to die well. It has to do with the home, with every-day business, with every relation of this life, and with the future life."

BOOKS FOR VACATION PROVIDED BY LIBRARY

Can be Drawn Out for That Purpose on Application—Close Men's Reading Room for Summer.

Through the courtesy of the Library Board books may be drawn for vacation use by the regular library patrons. All that is necessary is that the book loaner present his card at the desk, state that the book is intended for vacation use, and the length of time it is to be kept out. The only exceptions to this rule are the rental collection and the seven-day books.

The men's reading room is to be closed during the summer beginning June 17, and will not be reopened until the first of October. The patronage of the reading room has disappointed the expectations of the Library Board. It was opened for the especial convenience of the laboring and business men who desired the privilege of smoking while reading, but very few have made use of it.

During the summer the library will not be opened Sundays and during the months of July and August it will be closed evenings except Saturday evenings to 9:00 p. m. The annual meeting of the American Librarians Association will be held at Ottawa, Ontario, June 26 to July 3. This is the first year that the association has had a woman president, Mrs. H. L. Elmdorf of Buffalo serving in that capacity. Wisconsin people who will take part in the program are Miss Imogene Hazeltine, president of the Wisconsin Library School, and the Hon. William H. Hutton of New London, chairman of the State Free Library Commission. Miss Hazeltine will speak on "Types of Assistants," and Mr. Hutton on "Publicity for the Sale of Information."

NONESUCH BROS. TO SHOW IN MONTANA

Famous Carnival, Which Originated in Janesville, Will Be Reproduced
July 4 in Lewistown, Mont.

Col. Nonesuch of Janesville and the renowned aggregation of talented performers, wonderful trained animals and all the paraphernalia that go into the make-up of the great Nonesuch Bros. circus of Janesville, has spread the fame of the city far and wide over the country, and the requests for engagements yearly have kept the old Colonel busy answering his mail and filling out his contracts. Wherever the circus has been heard of, its appearance has been greeted by enormous crowds, and its popularity is ever increasing. Lewistown, Montana is the latest city where the Nonesuch Bros. circus of Janesville will show, plans having been made for putting on a replica of the famous show there on July 4. The business men and citizens of that place have taken a great deal of interest in the project, and the carnival as produced there will contain all the features for which it is renowned. The Commercial club of Lewistown is assisting in the work, and in order that nothing may be missing from the program, the secretary of the club has written to Charles S. Putnam of this city, asking for full details of the show as given in Janesville.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, June 12.—The cool and damp weather of spring has made silks and serges extremely popular, but as the summer season progresses and the weather becomes warmer the demand for lighter materials is sure to increase. The dealers, realizing that the days of the heavier materials are counted, are offering low overcoats and coats at prices low enough to attract economical buyers in great number.

The separate coat is featured throughout the line of the best imported models, appearing in all sorts of costumes, from the plain tailored to the most elaborate lingerie and lace creations. The use of the white satin or cloth coat over a black skirt which has been one of the spring sensations in Paris, is retaining its popularity, but appears in the delightful variations on the original theme.

A chic coat of fine, broadcloth is made in a low cut, with a skirt of black charmeuse, the low cut front of the coat filled in with soft ruffles of the same material in deep cream, is one of the models in the collection. The light coat and dark skirt idea. One finds coats of tulle, in cloth or silk, worn with skirts of white, the combination being rather a roller from the long ruffled black and white, and the tulle coat is used also with skirts of a brighter color, such as rose and coral.

It is said, by the way, that blouse of very gay color in sheer stuffs, such as tulle, chiffon, fine lace, etc., will be much used with white costumes this summer at the Continental watering places, and it is quite probable that the prophecy will become true, at least temporarily. The coat, or coat-like tunic in silk or other material of a bright color, worn over lingerie or lace or other sheer frocks, is sure to have a great run this season; and so many are the variations that they may be said upon the idea that there is no drawback for smartness.

To mention a few of the possibilities in that line, an exhibited in the late season models, there is a handsome skirt of broadcloth, Anglaise, which has a surprise bodice and a surprise skirt; a skirt of brocade crepe in pale lavender is accompanied by a little belted coat with draped front and draped coatlets in rose chiffon; an absolutely untrimmed, clinging robe of white charmeuse is relieved by a short tunic coat of empire green mousseline which does not meet in front, but is skirted by a scarf of violet velvet; a coat of rose tulle is worn over a skirt composed of three deep, scant flounces of embroidered silk, each flounce edged by a band or hem of the rose tulle, a big soft bow of the cream tulle holding the coat at the high waist line.

A costume of this tulle coat and lingerie skirt order is easily got up, need not be very expensive and has always a very festive air. One can find beautiful bits of tulle, thin moire, satin and other handsome silks on the remnant counter now and there are many attractive short ends of sheer stuffs on the bargain counter too. If one does not want to go to the expense of embroidered tulle or fine lace flouncing for such a model as the one just described, even a fine plain tulle can be used effectively by putting a little group of tiny tucks above the skirt.

The color scheme and the contrast between the silk and the sheer stuff are the essential and telling features of such a frock; and though lace and handwork, etc., add to the beauty of such a model, they are not absolutely essential to its charm.

Sheer materials such as silk, mull, marquisette, nylon or very sheer crepe, are cleverly trimmed in some of the imported frocks of simple character with bands of foulard on which large dots from the French tint in a band of the silk on which a single row of the large dots appears on a contrasting ground is put upon a thin material in the color of the ground of this type has bands of foulard with a big and rather bright blue dot on a white ground is seen in a very sheer white silk voile, and the same idea is exploited in a frock of white marquisette trimmed in bands of foulard which has big green dots on white.

White, marquisette of fine quality is perhaps the most satisfactory lingerie material of the season, though all the thin summer materials seem unusually pretty and there is in Paris a growing liking for the deep cream and ochre shades in place of the pure white.

A good many of the newest coats have no collars, but these are often worn with the handsome separate collars which come in numerous, and, on the other hand, there are many coats with collars are their chief claim to distinction. On the whole, however, the tendency seems to be away from the large collars, both in frocks and suits, and the long worn round collar or Dutch collar has to a very large degree given place to "rolling" collars of more moderate size.

Sleeves are increasingly broad, but are in many cases put in full but fast into a small armhole and then are allowed to widen toward the bottom, ending in a wide cuff and fall of lace or net at the elbow. Or they are put into the armhole full, and adjusted to the inner arm by little tucks and are allowed to drop on the outer arm over a close fitting lower section reaching to the hand.

The little sleeves of coats or tunics are often cut in one with the shoulder, but the kimono sleeve has really lost prestige at last and is seen less than it was at the beginning of the season. When it is used the under arm seam is so fitted up to the arm pit that bagginess is eliminated and the kimono idea remains only in the absence of an armhole seam across the shoulder.

Some of the newest dresses for mid-summer show combinations of white net and colored batiste. The sleeves are made of net, as well as the upper portion of the skirt. Embroidered panels of light blue batiste in English eyelet pattern are used from the waist yoke to the bottom edge of the skirt.

Narrow flounces of embroidery appear in three successive rows in the sides of the skirt, and are joined to the panels. Other dresses showing a similar combination have pink embroidered batiste in solid pattern combined effectively in both waist and skirt with the white net. Another colored model is made of pink voile with embroidered patterns worked out in white linen flounce.

The painter is softly glowing in favor, and looks best when the medium employed is soft and pliable, as chiffon and tulle.

The nuptial effect is popular in footwear, the mixture of black and white extending even to the shoe laces.

Pumps of green and other colored leathers are to be had in the shops, together with wonderful all-around hosiery of every hue.

BIG BOOK RUSH IS SURPRISE

Distribution Astonishes the "Show Me" Man, Who Calls Run Remarkable

"There ain't no such animal." That's what the farmer said when he saw his first circus giraffe, and that is practically what Eastern publishers have been saying about the record-breaking run upon The Gazette's book bank. It has been almost impossible to meet the demand, as great have been the throngs upon the banked-up store of New Websterians created by our readers' insatiable craving for knowledge neatly bound in black limp leather.

Six consecutive coupons from The Gazette and a small bonus secures a book.

This Dictionary is NOT published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary or by their successors. Yesterday the dictionary man, the one who is responsible for the creation of the volume, which has set Janesville dictionary daffy, hurried in town to "see what was up."

"Unbelievable" was the word he used when he saw the Dictionary Department almost depleted of its store of volumes. "It only goes to show how greatly Janesville has been maligned," he said. "This city knows a good thing when it sees it and the best is none too good for Janesville. This city beats all others for culture and appreciation of an educational opportunity. I'm going back and have myself with supplying this demand instead of scoffing at it."

Jon Driscoll, the English featherweight, who stopped the French champion, John Pacey, recently, is preparing to cross the Atlantic and give a visit. When he returns to the shores of Johnny Bull he expects to have the palps of Johnny Kilbane and other perfectly good Americans hanging to his belt.

On June 18, the same day that Teddy and Taft meet for their famous match in Chicago, Charles White, the sensational featherweight from the Windy City, will appear at the St. Nicholas Club in New York, having been matched against Young Shugart. The bets are all on White as he defeated Shugart on points quite recently.

Herman Wronke, who has been playing great ball for the Toledo Mudhens this season, is out of the game temporarily. There is a growth on his right elbow, which must be removed. As his batting has been unusually strong and his fielding at third base extremely brilliant, his absence is felt to no small degree.

This man Abel Kiviat runs so fast that he'll give all those Swedes the headache when they try to watch him in the Olympic races at Stockholm this summer. In the recent try-outs he set a new mark in the 1,500-meter race, covering the distance in 2:55.45. This elapsed a second from the previous world's record, held by himself. After finishing the 1,500-meter race he went in for the mile run and made the distance in 4:15.35, just one-fifth of a second less than the world's mark.

After Kiviat has beaten all the European contestants at Stockholm this summer in the 1,500-meter race, we suggest that he further demonstrate to those slow Europeans what he can do by running a race with one of their fast express trains.

Lost Christy Mathewson, of the New York Giants, became chummy over the record he is making in the box this year, we take this opportunity to remind him that at least one better record has been made in the past than he has made this season. In 1884 a pitcher on the Providence, R. I., team, whose name slipped our mind, won eighteen straight games. There was but one big league in those days, and this pitcher's phenomenal work won Providence the pennant. His record has never since been equaled.

Milwaukee, which bought pitcher Harry McIntyre from the Cubs, is seeking to return the "Andor Kline" and get its money back. The Milwaukee club says McIntyre has a bar arm and is in no condition to play. The matter has been placed before the national commission.

For the October meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association, the twelve stakes to which nominations and payments were due the first of this month, received 512 entries. This is nearly 200 in excess of the entry to the events that were decided last fall.

FORMER CHAMPIONS BEATEN SATURDAY

Parker Pen Lost To Y. M. C. A. 4 to 3, Giving Hanson Furniture Company Nine First Place in Commercial League.

Standing of Teams: Team W. L. P. C. Hanson Furniture Co. 3 0 1,000 Parker Pen 2 1 507 Y. M. C. A. 2 1 507 Gazette 1 2 333 Machine Co. 1 2 333 C. & N. W. 1 2 333 Recorder 1 2 333 Lewis Knitting 0 3 000

Y. M. C. A.-Parker Pen. With the defeat of the Parker Pen by the Y. M. C. A. players in Saturday's game in the Commercial League, the Penmakers were pushed back into a tie with the Association for second place, leaving the Hanson Furniture company's team at the head of the percentage column.

The defeat of the Pen makers by the Association athletes was the sensation of the day, the Y. M. C. A. bunch hanging it on the former champs in five innings by a score of 4 to 3. The Penmakers came strong in the first inning with three runs at the expense of the Y. M. C. A. errors, but after that the association men not only held their opponents, but scored four times against them. The last four innings of the game dragged rather slowly.

Hanson Furniture-C. & N. W. In the second game of the afternoon at Athletic park, the Northwest team lost to the Hanson Furniture company by a score of 7 to 1. Failure to hit with men on base was partly the cause of the railroad men's defeat. Clark, pitching for the Hansons, managed to pull himself out of tight places. The only score made by the Northwesters nine was on a home run away by Wilson, who drove the sphere into the frag pond.

Machine Co.-Lewis Knitting. As the Machine company's men at York Park Saturday, the Lewis Knitting company took the short end of an 18 to 8 score in their game with the Machine company's team. Muligan, twirling for the Spinners, was easy meat for the Playboys sluggers, although the Spinners managed to bag eight runs.

Gazette-Recorder. In the only game at the Fair grounds Saturday afternoon, the Gazette team won from their rival typists, the Recorder aggregation, by a score of 10 to 5. Prominent errors were made by both squads.

Cardinals Defeated K. C's. The Janesville Cardinals took the K. C. also into camp yesterday by a total of seventeen runs as against six made by the K. C. Berger, pitching for the K. C. team was frequently knocked out of the box. The line-ups were as follows:

Cardinals: Wilson, c; Connell, p; Jones, ss; Hill, 1b; G. Cronin, 2b; Ryan, 3b; Klusky, if; F. Cronin, cf; Ryan, rf.

K. C's: Neher, c; Berger, p; Hoffert, ss; W. Hanning, 1b; Sullivan, 2b; Loney, 3b; Burger, if; V. Hanning, cf; Her, rf.

Pirates Lost at Beloit. At Beloit yesterday the Beloit Cubs were victorious over the Janesville Pirates by an 8 to 6 score. The game lasted only five innings.

Midgots-Stars. The Midgots may have been small but they proved mightier than the Stars in a baseball game played Saturday, the pygmies winning from the Stars by 9 to 3. The teams lined up as follows:

MIDGOTS:—McCue, c; Frou, p; Casandy, ss; Haley, 1b; Kalon, 2b; Hagar, 3b; Denning, if; Novack, cf; Connors, rf.

STARS:—Spohn, c; Drow, p; Sullivan, ss; Marshall, 1b; Roberts, 2b; McCaffrey, 3b; Gaman, if; Mason, cf.

Lucky But Unlucky. Yesterday afternoon proved unlucky for the Janesville White Sox. They had a game scheduled with a team from Milton but they did not show up, so by the rules of the game the Sox claim another victory to their long list.

Nationals Loss. Yesterday afternoon the Janesville Nationals did not defeat at the hands of the Darlen team by the score of 7 to 5. The Darlen team is classed as one of the fastest teams in the southern part of the state and the Janesville boys played very good ball to hold them to such a low score.

Icelanders' Gloves. In so cold a climate as Iceland the glove must be put off or on as rapidly and easily as possible; so it is made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left all gloves have two thumbs. You simply thrust your hand into the first glove that comes and your thumb immediately finds its way. There are, of course, drawbacks in the matter of appearance, for the dangling little thumb looks unattractive. —London Chronicle.

VISITED PALATINE TRAINING STABLE

Letha Van Pool Writes of Two Days' Visit at Training Quarters of Charles Dean.

(By Letha Van Pool.) Having made a visit to the training stable of Mr. Charles E. Dean at Palatine, Ill., with my father, the tenth and eleventh of this month, horse people here will probably be interested in the news gathered from there.

Mr. Dean is well known as one of the best drivers and speed-makers in the country. There are now about one hundred and twenty horses in training at his stables, twenty of which are two-year-olds. Mr. Dean has about sixteen men employed to help him care for and train the horses.

Among these is the blacksmith who does the shoeing for all the horses in training. Eight of these men are trainers, they being Charles Dean, Jr., Fred Johns, Steve Ream, James Cahalan, Will Edgington, Henry Williams and Bob Bradley, while the others are care-takers. There is one name among the trainers which I did not get, so there are but seven named.

Judging from the appearance and excellent work shown by the horses, Mr. Dean has an exceptionally good bunch of men. Another good quality found in the horses there, was their gentleness. In stepping to their doors and speaking to the horses and petting them, I found none that showed that crankiness of temperament which is often shown by race horses.

This, too, is probably due to the way in which the horses are cared for. One of the first people I met at Palatine was Mr. Henry Tenyok White, the great writer of horse literature, with whom we had the honor of eating dinner. He is well posted on all the horses in training there. It will keep any stranger busy in distinguishing the horses as they come onto the track.

The half-mile track on which the horses are trained is a very good one, and one over which some of the best horses have been stepped. After seeing so many good ones, one hardly knows where to begin.

I will, however, begin with Henry II, 2:07 1/2, who, by the way, has proven himself to be a very good one. The record he now holds is trotting, but this year he is in training as a pacer. His gait is changed by the way in which he is shod. He wears a six-ounce shoe in front and a four-ounce behind for pacing. It is very interesting to see the blacksmith carrying out the various directions of shoeing, for the different horses brought to him. Henry II. is a large, dappled brown, weighing 1150 pounds, having as a race name "The Big Ship." He is by Gregory the Great (2:22 3/4) and is owned in Chicago by Mr. Henry Hartmeyer, who was there to see him in his work. Last season Henry II. stepped over the track at Mr. Dean's in 2:08 1/2, being the only one that ever accomplished it excepting "The Brachio," 2:00 1/2. He is entered in the $5,000 Chamber of Commerce at Detroit, Mich. I saw him work out with King Dahpne, 2:07 1/2, who obtained his record last season in the Kentucky Futurity where he won two heats as a three-year-old. His sire is King Direct, 2:05 1/2, while his dam is Madam Paphne, by Alcantara, 2:23. King Dahpne is a black, and as pretty a going little horse as you would wish to see. When he is out for his work, he is there to show that he can surely step some. The day that I saw these two horses work out, Mr. Dean drove King Dahpne and Mr. Ream drove Henry II. There was certainly a great contrast in the big, even gait of Henry II. and the short, busy stepping of King Dahpne. Although the latter was much smaller he worked very well with the big horse. They stepped the first mile in 2:33, and the last half in 1:11. Their next mile was in 2:20, while their third was in 2:19, the last quarter in 33 1/2 seconds. This is the fastest mile that has been worked this year over Mr. Dean's track. Henry II. came home in the lead with the little black not far behind. The next mile was stepped in 2:22 1/2, with an eighth for Henry II. in 1:12 1/2 seconds, the last quarter being stepped in 32 1/2 seconds.

Another promising horse was Barbara Wentherspoon, a pacer holding no record. She is a three-year-old and a dark bay. She was bought at the Indianapolis sale for $205. I saw her work out two miles, each in 2:31.

With an eighth in 17 seconds. Mr. Arthur Thomas, the editor of "The Horseman," and son of Al Thomas, the driver, worked her out. Copious, 2:27 1/2, by La Copia, p. 2:15 1/2, by Bingen, 2:06 1/2, is another good three-year-old. He is a trotter and obtained the record which he now holds as a two-year-old. He has been a quarter in 33 1/2 seconds. I saw him step a mile in 2:35, the last quarter in 36 seconds and the last eighth in 17 1/2 seconds. He also stepped another mile in 2:36, the half being 1:13. The third best was stepped in 2:22, Mr. Dean driving him. He is owned by E. J. Moriarty of Chicago, the same man that owns King Paphne, before mentioned.

But anyone wishing to see the sweetest little horse on the farm, should not fail to look at the little two-year-old beauty, Valpa Custer, by Ed. Custer, 2:10; 1st dam Valpa, 2:00 1/2; by Searchlight, p. 2:03 1/2. She is a chestnut, with a white blaze face, and three white feet. Valpa Custer is owned by Mr. Charles Dean and Mr. Walter Moore. She has been a mile in 2:51, a half in 1:19 and a quarter in 38 seconds. I saw Mr. Dean drive her a mile in 3:01, a half in 1:35 and a quarter in 41 seconds. Another mile in 3:04 and a half in 1:24 1/2. She did not step as fast as usual because of just having her toes somewhat shortened, making her a little untidy. The foregoing facts show that she promises to make a trotter of which her owners may well be proud, since she is as yet a colt scarcely broken.

Miss Mosler, by George Muscovite, 2:08; is a nice bay trotter. She has a white star on the face. I saw Mr. Dean drive her a half in 1:09 1/2; the mile in 2:24. Her next mile was in 2:21 1/2, driven by Mr. Bradley, the caretaker of Minor Hair, p. 1:58 1/2. Fair Maiden, 2:08 1/2, by Prince of India, 2:13 1/2, driven by Mr. Dean, and Col. Muscovite, 3. p. 2:22 1/2, driven by Mr. Bradley, worked out together. Their first mile was in 2:29 1/2, and the second one in 2:28 1/2, the half in 1:07. They worked a quarter in 33 1/2 seconds.

Richard Jay, bay, is another good three-year-old trotter. He went a trial in 1911 in 2:23 1/2. This year he has stepped a quarter in 33 1/2 seconds.

Baroness Cora, by Baron Ravlow, 2:21 1/2, roan filly, is another good two-year-old trotter, having been a mile in 2:57.

Hope that the foregoing account will give Janesville people a fair idea of this great training stable. I may at another time give some news of the horses in our home city.

Cheapers Steel Production. A German inventor has discovered a new process for making steel which is said to be equal in every point to crucible steel, although made without crucibles, and which is becoming a competitor of electrosteel because, while of equal standard in quality, its cost of production is supposed to be only one-tenth that of electrosteel.

THE THEATERS

Frank Wininger and Chancy Alcott are without doubt the two most popular actors that visited Winona, Minn., and in point of favorites it is safe to say that Frank Wininger heads the list which was demonstrated by the reception given him last Sunday at the Opera House.

So great was his success that arrangements were at once made for a return engagement. Winona, Lauder, Frank Wininger will appear at each and every performance with the company that is to play an engagement at Myer's theatre six nights starting Wednesday, June 19th with Matinees Saturday and Sunday.

AVIATION UPS AND DOWNS.

Even kinks look up to the humble aviators.

Aerial navigation may be something of a plane business, but it brings fancy prices.

The man who flies has all main line/no side tracks and no right of way to pay.

The balloon man is about the only one who can use hot air successfully.

Talking about aviation, it's not half so bad as dodging automobiles in crowded thoroughfares, states Aviator Nelson. "Give us the crowded thoroughfare."

Many people will be holding their heads higher when the flying men come to town.

It's the "goop," not "blow-up" gasoline that the aviators prefer.

If you give an aviator gasoline, will it make him roar?

WINS AT TENNIS IN ASTONISHING HAT

Mrs. Barger Wallach, of New York, at the recent tennis tournament for the championship of the eastern states, defeated all comers. It was not her playing, however, that attracted the attention of the crowd so much as her remarkable head gear. While all the other players discarded the conventional hats, Mrs. Wallach persisted in playing tennis while wearing a high-crowned hat that would have been quite in place at a society function.

To Remove Tar. To remove tar from clothes, rub butter or lard over the tar spots, then wash with soap and water. Apply oil of turpentine and let remain for one hour, then wash again and the tar will be removed. To remove tar from the hands, rub with outside of fresh orange or lemon peel, and wipe dry immediately.

Over-Churches: Under-Guarded.
A citizen of Shirley objects to the vote of the town authorizing an out-of-town policeman, on the ground that there are six churches in the village, and that if it does not behave itself, what it needs is a missionary, and not an officer. Possibly if there were not more than two churches in the town there would be enough public spirit to make either missionaries or policemen unnecessary.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

CONVENTION VISITORS ARRIVE IN THE CITY

ADVANCE GUARD OF THE F. O. E. REACHED JANSVILLE THIS AFTERNOON.

PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Aeroplane Arrives and All Details of Three Days' Entertainments Are Finished.

With the arrival of the advance guard of the visitors for the coming state convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, at noon today, the city began to put on a festive appearance. By night it is expected that a good number of strangers from a distance will have arrived, and by noon tomorrow the three days' convention and celebration will be in full swing.

The opening session of the delegates tomorrow at noon, at the Eagles' hall, while the visitors will find plenty to amuse themselves with the races at the Park association grounds, the band concerts and the two aeroplane flights by Nels Nelson of the Mills Aviation company. Mr. Nelson and his aeroplane have arrived and are being tuned up for the two flights daily which will be one of the unique features of the celebration.

Tomorrow evening the public meeting at the Myers theatre will be held at which prominent speakers will give addresses, and to which the public is invited. Judge Karol of Milwaukee, one of the men most talked of for the democratic nomination for governor, will be the principal speaker of the evening.

Wednesday comes the big parade and the big day of the convention. The expectations that fully five thousand men in uniform and at least twenty bands, of eighteen pieces, will take part, promises to be realized. The parade is at two o'clock in the afternoon and the following is the line of march decided upon:

The parade will form on South Main street near the Court House park, and the line of march will be as follows: North on Main street to East Milwaukee street; east on East Milwaukee street to North Main street; north on North Main street to Prospect avenue; west on Prospect avenue to North Main street; south on North Main street to Milwaukee street; west on Milwaukee street to Pleasant street; east on Pleasant street to High street; north on High street to Milwaukee street; east on Milwaukee street to Jackson street; north on Jackson street to Wall street; east on Wall street to Franklin street; south on Franklin street to Milwaukee street; east on Milwaukee street to River street; south on River street to Pleasant street; east on Pleasant street to Court street to the Court House park, where the parade will disband.

Frank D. Ryan and Joseph Murray will act as mounted marshals.

BELOIT MAN MUST SUPPORT HIS WIFE

Divorce Denied Mrs. Vesta Rosenblatt, But Her Husband Must Pay Her $3.50 Per Week.

In the divorce case of Vesta Rosenblatt versus Louis J. Rosenblatt of Beloit, in the circuit court before Judge Grimm today, the divorce was denied the plaintiff by the judge, but the defendant was ordered to pay to her $3.50 per week, pay $25 attorney's fees and the costs of the action. The plaintiff is eighteen years of age, and the defendant twenty-three. In the testimony, it was stated that the couple were married last December at Beloit from his parents, who sought to separate the couple. His father is in the overall manufacturing business in Beloit.

A judgment of divorce was granted to May Thomas of Beloit from her husband, David W. Thomas, on the charge of desertion and non-support. The case of Douglas Zimbeck against Albert Zimbeck, another Beloit divorce case, was adjourned to next Monday morning, in order for the plaintiff to produce another witness.

Judgment of foreclosure was rendered in the case of Patrick J. Dulla versus Thomas Lawless et al. The cases of J. B. Humphrey versus M. Nickerson, and of A. M. Musser against the Rock County Sugar company were dismissed by stipulation of the attorneys.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Fire at Doty Plant: Several thousands at the Doty Manufacturing company's plant on North Main street caught fire early Saturday night from an open flask that was left burning and the fire department was called out at about eight o'clock. FINLEY'S CONDITION IS STILL SERIOUS

Man Injured When Train Struck Automobile Saturday. Rested Slightly Easier Today.

The condition of Richard Finley, who had three ribs broken and was internally injured Saturday when his automobile turned turtle and plumed him down after it was struck by a train, is reported still to be serious today, although he is resting a little easier. The physician has been unable to determine the extent of his internal injuries, but it is not thought that the outcome will be fatal. His back was badly injured when he was thrown under the machine. R. A. Arnold and J. W. Dye, who were riding with Mr. Finley occupied with a few minor injuries and a bad shaking up.

WALTER H. HALLETT JOINS BENEDICTS

Local Man Wedded to Miss Retha B. Leet of Fond du Lac at Five O'clock Saturday Afternoon.

Walter H. Hallett of this city, and Miss Retha B. Leet of Fond du Lac, were married Saturday afternoon at five o'clock at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Jordan, 102 Rock street, by the Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Carroll Memorial Methodist church. The couple were attended by Miss Edith Leet of Fond du Lac, sister of the bride, Mrs. Hattie Hallett and Charles Hallett of Janesville, and Charles Austin of Harmony. A number of invited guests witnessed the ceremony, and after the congratulations sat down to a wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Hallett will reside in this city at 308 South Franklin street. The groom is employed at the Janesville Machine company.

Burying-Fries.
Mr. Arthur Fries and Miss Charlotte E. Bury, both of Chicago, were married at the Methodist parsonage at 10 o'clock this morning by the Rev. F. D. Williams. The young people left at once to visit the bride's parents at Monroe. They will reside in Chicago. The groom is employed by the Chicago & Northwestern railway.

Heinz-Fuder.
Miss Anna Heinz of this city and Wenzel Fuder of Beloit were united in marriage at St. Mary's church this morning by the Rev. Wm. A. Goebel.

MRS. H. L. McNAMARA LAID AT REST TODAY

Funeral Services for Wife of Well Known Hardware Merchant Were Held This Afternoon.

The last rites for Mrs. McNamara, wife of H. L. McNamara, who died Saturday evening after a brief illness, were held from the home, 402 North Pearl street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. David Benton, pastor of the Congregational church, of which she was a member and a diligent and faithful worker. The pallbearers were E. T. Fish, L. J. Baker, John M. Whitehead, William Joffie, Charles Cleland, and C. B. Evans. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. McNamara was born in Fulton county, New York, April 1, 1850. She was married at Onondaga, Mich., to H. L. McNamara, December 10, 1875, and came with him to Janesville in 1879. Mrs. McNamara was a woman of unusually cheerful disposition and had a word of sympathy and encouragement for all those friends who loved to come to her when distressed and in trouble. She was a devoted wife and mother and her presence will be sorely missed from the family circle.

Mourning her loss are her husband, and three sons and two sisters: H. W. and M. L. McNamara of this city, E. L. McNamara of Milwaukee; Mrs. John Puhos of Johnstown, New York, and Mrs. Frank Harris of Masonville, Iowa.

Mrs. Mary Walrath.
Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Stevens Walrath were held at the home, 412 South Main street, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. David Benton, pastor of the Congregational church, was the officiating pastor. The pallbearers were William Conrad, Robert Dostwick, Jr., O. J. Bates, C. S. Jackman, Edward Elfeldt, and F. A. Taylor. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery. Those from out of the city who were present at the funeral were Mrs. A. H. Hughes and Miss Anna May Hughes of Oberlin, Ohio.

Mrs. Mary Schmidley.
Solemn requiem high mass for Mrs. Mary Schmidley was celebrated at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock this morning by the Rev. Father W. A. Goebel. The pall bearers were Oscar George, Harry, Louis, Frank and William Schmidley, all brothers and the sons of Mrs. Schmidley. Burial was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

BEGIN PUMPING OUT MUD FROM ABUTMENT OF BRIDGE.

Material Must Be Removed Before Concrete Foundation is Laid—Trouble With Working Pumps.

Mud so thin and fluid that it could not be dredged out is being removed from the bottom of the forms for the concrete abutment of the Fourth avenue bridge by the use of large centrifugal pump operated by a traction engine. Great difficulty has been experienced in getting a pump to work satisfactorily. The first one tried had to be replaced and some breakages had to be repaired. The pile driver is continually kept at work on the east bank abutment and is making good progress.

Why You Should Bring Your Watch, Clock and Jewelry Repairing to me.

Because I have had over twenty years experience in a retail jewelry store and seven years in the largest watch factories; three of which I was a model maker and master watchmaker. I have done all kinds of adjusting—heat and cold positions—synchronism. These adjustments are very necessary and a watch will not keep good time without them. If your watch does not keep time it is a good indication that some of the adjustments are not right. Bring it to me and I will put it in order and will guarantee you good time and at small cost.

IT IS THE CHANCE OF THE SEASON

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

The Home Without Ideals.

I CAN'T understand," said Mrs. Brown, with a sigh, "why these Smith boys play at home the way they do. I can't make my Willie stay at home a minute. He plays with all the hoodlums of the neighborhood. I've told him time and time again, he's not to go with that Gallagher boy. But the minute my back's turned, he's with him. I've punished him and everything, but it does no good."

Although Mrs. Brown did not realize it, the Smith home was a home with ideals, and here was a home without ideals. And that was the root of the matter.

Her Willie looked upon his home as a place simply for food and shelter. It stood to him for nothing else. He came in to eat his meals, and got out again as soon as he could. He remained out at night until his mother's voice resounded through the neighborhood calling him to come to bed. And then he came reluctantly. There was absolutely nothing about that home that attracted him, except food when he was hungry and a bed when he was tired.

This was also to a large extent the attitude of Willie's father. And Mrs. Brown herself as a rule hurried through her household tasks and then went in town shopping, or over to a neighbor's to gossip, or to a gathering of friends for cards.

This is not the only home of its kind in the country. There are many like it, more shells of board or brick or stone, with some furniture set about, and food on the table. And often, unless there is a Willie to make the mother pause and realize that something is wrong, the inmates of such a home are quite content with it.

But a home needs to be more than food and shelter, if it is to fulfill its highest purpose. Its province is to silently mould character for the better, to furnish the little ones within its walls with ideals that will govern their future life. It must be an inspiration, a comfort, a haven. It must be far more than a roof and furniture and food. And the home that is not this is almost as bad as no home at all. There is much to be said today against the decadence of the home. But there is almost as much need of outcry against the home without ideals.

And it is largely up to the mother to create the influences that shall rule in the home. To be sure, the father should do his share. But we have formed the habit of exiling the American father from home duty, because he is so busy earning the living. So the creation of a home in its fullest sense rests upon the mother. And before she considers furniture, or wall-papers, or whether the maid shall wear a uniform, she should deliberately take time and decide what the ideals of her home shall be. She ought to plan what her home is to stand for to her children. She ought to make sure of putting into it charm and cheer and patience and love and thoughtfulness and truth and honor and all those things that are more beautiful and more enduring than mere furniture. For these are the things which take a sure hold upon the spirit, and which bring Willie and his father and the other members of the family to the home with quick and eager, instead of slow and reluctant, feet.

Barbara Boyd.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

(By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson.)

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going with a young man whom I love very dearly, and who, I know, loves me. But for some reason his mother objects to me. I am fully his equal and for his sake have tried to win his mother, but have not succeeded. He wants to marry me and again he is afraid of displeasing his mother. Please advise me what you think best for me to do—if I should keep going with him or not, and oblige, CARMAN T.

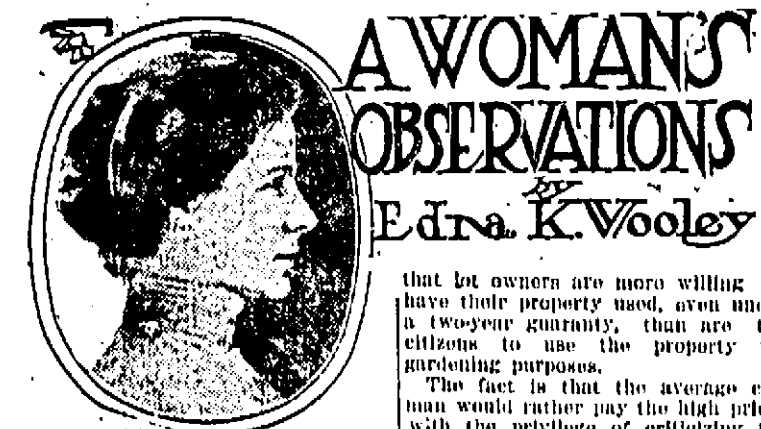

You poor dear! You are having just the same trouble that many a girl has to confront. Many a young man's mother is simply constitutionally jealous of her son and cannot see a redeeming thing in the woman who "attracts" his love. She forgets that it is a man's right to love and marry the kind of girl to suit himself, when he is able to support a home. If your young man is old enough to marry and able to take care of a wife—if you and he are sure of your love for each other—a love that will overcome any unpleasantness that an unkind relative might occasion; then marry. If the man is any good at all, he will not be afraid of his mother in a matter like that. He may love his mother just as much as ever, but when he has told a girl he loves her and wishes her for his wife, and if he has won her love, his first duty is to the girl. Put it up to the young man. Tell him to choose between you and his fear of displeasing his mother. If he chooses the latter, then you will know he is a weak character and you are better off without him. You cannot afford to waste your best years on a man who hasn't the spirit to take a wife, when he is able, and to stand up for her when he has her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me how to can pineapple and strawberries. Last summer I did up pineapple and it got awfully dark, and my strawberries did not keep nice either. I should like to know how to preserve the berries, also how to can them so they look nice. YOUNG HOUSEKEEPER.

Perhaps you cooked your fruit in an iron kettle, which would make them turn dark. A granite kettle is best. To can strawberries, first sterilize cans and covers, then pack cans full of fresh, clean berries and set in blocks of wood or thick cloths, in an ordinary boiler. Make a syrup using two oven teaspoons (about a pint) of sugar for each quart jar. Pour this syrup (warm, not hot) in jars until they are full to the top. Then put on tops, without screwing tight, and cook in boiler half an hour, when berries should be done. (All berries can be canned this way; raspberries need less cooking.) Tops can then be screwed tight and the berries should retain shape and a good color.

Pineapple should be cooked before putting into the jars, adding sugar while cooking. Fill jars with pineapple hot and fasten on tops. Set jars on wet cloths while pouring in hot syrup, and you will set, later, then you will know he is a

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

by Edna K. Wooley

A strong effort is being made in a number of American cities to help citizens cut the cost of living by making use of vacant lots as vegetable gardens.

The municipality in each instance is acting as the agent to connect would-be gardeners with owners willing to donate the use of vacant lots, the city agreeing to put the ground in shape for gardening. All the amateur gardener has to do is to make his garden and pluck the fruits thereof.

But in spite of the high cost of living, and the large amount of talk about the profits to be found in vegetable gardening, to say nothing of the encouragement on all sides toward amateur gardening, the fact remains

I wish our ladies would be contented to be just girls, and not try to enhance their delicious youth by artificial aids.

There is nothing sweeter in this world than a girl between her sixteenth and twentieth years—if she'll be just what she is; a bud promising a beautiful full-blown flower.

But so often a girl spoils all her natural sweetness by a make-up which is only too apparent. She hides the maidenliness in her eyes by blackened lashes and lends boldness to her brow by penciled eyebrows. Her hair is befrizzled and befruffed, and even though she may have an abundance of her own she often adds store half thinking it adds to her attractiveness. And she dresses with a lack of modesty which makes many an older woman blush.

It is too bad. What should be sweet and wholesome is made into something entirely artificial. With her artificiality the girl becomes bold and affected. And we lose the joy of looking upon all that charm and delicate bloom and innocence which belong to woman only in that brief period of her youth. The girl loses a joy that she doesn't understand at the time, but one that she will regret when she grows older and learns to envy the youth growing up about her.

FROZEN DESSERTS.

When company is coming and a dish of extra quality is desired, Baked Alaska will be highly appreciated. Get a one or two quart brick of vanilla ice cream and make a meringue of three or six egg whites and three or six tablespoons of powdered sugar. Cover a board with white paper, lay on a thin sponge cake and turn the ice cream on the cake, which should extend a half inch beyond the cream. Cover with the meringue and spread smoothly. Place in the oven and brown quickly in a hot oven.

A cupful of crushed macaroons added to vanilla ice cream before it is frozen hard makes a delicious variety.

Banana Ice Cream—Remove the skins and rub through a sieve four good-sized bananas; add a cup of sugar and one and a half tablespoons of lemon juice and a quart of cream, then freeze.

Chocolate Ice Cream—Melt one and a half squares of bitter chocolate and dilute with hot water to pour easily; add to a quart of thin cream, then add a cup of sugar, pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of vanilla. Freeze.

Strawberry Ice Cream—Crush a quart of ripe berries and strain through a cheese cloth, add a cup and three-quarters of sugar and a pint of cream, with a pinch of salt, and freeze.

Milk Sherbet—This is a delicious frozen dish that is rich enough to satisfy many who find ice cream too heavy for the digestion. Take the juice of three lemons, a cup and a half of sugar and a quart of good milk; freeze. The mixture may curdle when combined, but it will freeze out and be as smooth as velvet.

MILK DIET FOR EMACIATION.

A reader asks whether the milk diet is to be recommended for one who is thirty pounds under weight and how it should be taken. Much depends on the cause of the emaciation and upon the temperament. I have lately had the report of a case of a man who spent three months at a sanitarium devoted to the milk cure, who thinks he was seriously injured by it, his nutrition being so deranged that he has not regained his normal condition. Some cannot take sweet milk without injury. Some organic derangement may exist or a change of work or scene may be more necessary than special diet. If you are satisfied that the milk diet is appropriate (and emaciation is one of the indications for it) change one meal at a time. Instead of the usual breakfast, sip a pint of milk holding it in the mouth several seconds, making no change in the other meals. Next morning take a quart for breakfast; the third day take also a quart for the noon meal, making no change in the supper; the fourth day, take two quarts for the noon meal, the fifth day one quart for supper, the sixth day, five or six quarts in all, according to conditions. This method and quantity will suit the average case. The diet should be continued from two to six weeks, and the change back should be made gradually.

A LEAF FROM THE BOY SCOUTS' BOOK.

IF YOU were on a train and there was an accident, and everything was thrown into confusion, and perhaps there was darkness, would you know in what portion of the train to look for the emergency tools and the fire extinguisher?

If you were asleep in your berth on a ship and were awakened suddenly by being told that the ship was sinking and you must get into a life-preserver, would you know where to look for one and how to put it on?

Two young women were taking a one night trip on a steamer. As they were preparing for bed, one of them paused to read the printed instructions which were hanging on the wall, and even took the pains to look under the berth to see if they were there and to make sure that she thoroughly understood the directions about adjusting them. The other girl was most amused at all this precaution—needless to say this was before April 14—and urged her companion to stop talking all that nonsense and come to bed.

Previous to the terrible disaster that shocked and sobered a world of men who had been growing habitually confident of their superiority to nature and the elements, I wonder how many voyagers would have carefully read these instructions. Perhaps one in ten. Or had I better say one in a hundred?

For the next few years, until we have had time to forget, I suppose we shall all be more thoughtful in this particular direction. But what about taking a little forethought in regard to what we would do in case of other kinds of accidents?

A car full of passengers probably owe their limbs, if not their lives, to one young man who thought it worth while to know what to do in case of accident. The motorman fainting when the car was on a steep down grade; instant action was necessary as there was a hairpin curve at the bottom. This man had deliberately noticed the method of running the cars because he thought it would be a good thing to know, and he was able to throw on the brakes with lightning swiftness.

A man very fond of the Boy Scouts' motto which is "SEMPER PARATUS"—"always ready." Surely a great many accidents might have been prevented or at least made less terrible if more of us lived that motto.

Someone may suggest that it is not pleasant thing to be always expecting an accident. No, my friend, but you need not be always expecting an accident. Just "SEMPER PARATUS," you know. Really that's quite a different thing.

Chicken Patties of Short Cake.

For this you need the remains of old chicken, and to every cup of cold diced chicken allow a fourth of a cup of cooked ham, three tablespoons of cream. If you don't have cream use milk. Make it rich with butter and the gravy that was left along with the chicken. But use cream if you can, for you don't make chicken shortcake every day, and you want it nice when you have it.

Season with minced parsley, lemon juice, salt, pepper, nutmeg and a dash of paprika. Place this in a sautépan and heat carefully that it may not burn. Fill patty pans with puff paste, or bake and cut in sheets. If you are making the "shortcake," if you soo the patty this brush over with the beaten yolk of an egg before baking. When done fill with the cooked chicken mixture.

The truth about fried chicken up north is that it is unquestionably inferior to almost anything else in the chicken line. In the first place, the chicken on our markets are cold storage birds, and they will not fry rightly any more than a cold storage egg will poach. Then we Northerners cover the miserable creatures with a batter and cook it until it is as hard as plaster paris.

That is not fried chicken. That is an insult to all the feathered tribe. Real fried chicken is not dipped in batter and served with corn fritters or green peas, but just dredged lightly with flour, sprinkled with pepper and salt and fried in butter until it is a glorious, tempting brown. But it is not served with anything but its own gravy, thickened with a little flour moistened with cream. That's fried chicken, and if the gods do live on any earthly food, I am sure "fried chicken, Southern style," must be their preference.

Chicken With Rice—The only thing that should be eaten with chicken is rice, and rice with chicken is the best thing you ever did eat. I speak with authority for I have more than three hundred tried and tested recipes for cooking chicken.

Here is the recipe that I am really proud to present to you:

Place two young, or one large, jointed chicken in a marinade of lemon juice and salt oil; leave for an hour, then place without draining or wiping in the inner kettle of the double boiler. Add no water or other liquid. Cover closely and put in the other kettle; cook two hours at least, without raising the lid; only taking care that the outer kettle is kept filled with boiling water. At the end of an hour, drop into the inner kettle a cup of chopped onion, a tablespoon of minced parsley and other seasoning; of course this is the time to add onion if you use it. I never do for chicken does not need any additions to its own excellent good taste, other than salt and pepper.

After adding the onion and seasoning replace the cover and cook another hour, when the chicken will be dropping apart with tenderness and half covered with its own rich juice. Remove from the kettle and place in a warm spot. To the gravy add two cups of cooked rice, recover and cook ten minutes or until the rice is heated through. Place the chicken on a platter and cover with the rice and gravy. Grate Parmesan or other distinctly flavored cheese over the top and set in a hot oven two minutes. You may omit the cheese if you like and you may cook the rice in the double boiler, or casserole, with the chicken, if the saving of gas is an object.

IMPEACHMENTS BY CONGRESS.

BY A. W. MACY.

Since the founding of the U. S. government there have been seven impeachments by congress. In 1797 William Blount, U. S. senator from Tennessee, was impeached for making treasonable negotiations with Great Britain for the transfer of New Orleans. He was acquitted for want of jurisdiction. In 1803 John Pickens, judge of the Federal court in New Hampshire, was impeached for drunkenness and profanity, and removed from the bench. In 1804 U. S. Supreme Court Judge Samuel Chase was impeached for arbitrary conduct and for introducing politics in his legal discussions. He was acquitted. The same year James Peck, a Federal judge, was impeached for punishing as contempt of court a criticism of his opinions. He was acquitted. In 1860 Federal Judge W. H. Humphries of Tennessee was impeached for aiding the rebellion and was removed from office. In 1867 President Andrew Johnson was impeached for violating the tenure of office act and was acquitted. In 1876 W. W. Belknap, secretary of war, was impeached for bribery in making appointments. He was acquitted.

QUIT CALOMEL

Thousands Are Turning from This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Portsmouth, Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver tonic in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers. His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive oil colored tablet.

The results of fifteen years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets. They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

The Three Guardsmen

... By ...

ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"M. de Treville?" said the unknown, becoming attentive. "He put his hand upon his pocket while pronouncing the name of M. de Treville? What was there in the pocket?"

"A letter addressed to M. de Treville, captain of the musketeers."

The unknown knitted his brows like a man suddenly rendered uneasy.

"The devil!" murmured he between his teeth. "Can Treville have set this Gascon upon me? I don't know," said he, "could you not contrive to get rid of this frantic boy for me? In consequence I cannot kill him, and yet, added he, with a coldly menacing expression, "and yet he annoys me. Where is he?"

"In my wife's chamber, where they are dressing his hair, on the first floor."

"Madly must see nothing of this fellow," said the stranger to himself. "She will soon pass; she is already late. I had better get on horseback and go and meet her. I should like, however, to know what this letter addressed to Treville contained."

And the unknown, muttering to himself, directed his steps toward the kitchen.

In the meantime the host who entertained no doubt that it was the presence of the young man that drove the unknown from his hostelry, reascended to his wife's chamber and found D'Artagnan just recovering his senses.

Noting him for having sought a quarrel with a great lord, for, in the opinion of the host, the unknown could be nothing less than a great lord, he insisted that, notwithstanding his weakness, he should get up and depart as quickly as possible. D'Artagnan, half stupefied, without his doublet and with his hand bound up in a linen cloth, arose then and, urged forward by the host, began to descend the stairs, but on arriving at the kitchen the first thing he saw was his antagonist talking calmly at the stop of a heavy carriage drawn by two large Norman horses.

His interlocutor, whose head appeared through the carriage window, was a woman of from twenty to two and twenty years of age. She was young and pale and fair, with long curls falling in profusion over her shoulders; had large blue, languishing eyes, rosy lips and hands of alabaster.

"His eminence, then, orders me," said the lady.

"To return instantly to England and to inform him immediately the duke leaves London."

"And my other instructions?" asked the fair traveler.

"They are contained in this box, which you will not open until you are on the other side of the channel."

"Very well; and you, what are you going to do?"

"—oh, I shall return to Paris."

"What, without chastising this insolent boy?" asked the lady.

"The unknown was about to reply, but at the moment he opened his mouth, D'Artagnan, who had heard all, rushed forward through the open door.

"This insolent boy chastises others," cried he, "and I have good hope that he whom he means to chastise will not escape him as he did before."

"Remember," cried the lady, seeing the unknown lay his hand on his sword—"remember that the least delay may ruin everything."

"True," cried the gentleman. "Hence, then, on your part, and I will depart as quickly as mine." And bowing to the lady, he sprang into his saddle, his coachman at the same time applying his whip vigorously to his horses. The two interlocutors thus separated, taking opposite directions at full gallop.

"Your reckoning! Your reckoning!" vociferated the host.

"Pay him, booby!" cried the unknown to his servant, without checking the speed of his horse, and the man, after throwing two or three pieces of silver at the foot of the host, galloped after his master at full speed.

"That coward! False gentleman!" cried D'Artagnan, springing forward in his turn after the servant. But his wound had rendered him too weak to support such an exertion.

"He is a coward indeed," grumbled the host, drawing near to D'Artagnan, and endeavoring by this little flattery to make up matters with the young man, as the heron of the fable did with the snail he had despised the evening before.

"Yes, a base coward," murmured D'Artagnan, "but she—she was very beautiful."

"What she?" demanded the host.

"Milady," faltered D'Artagnan and fainted.

"Ah, it's all one," said the host. "I have lost two customers, but this one remains, of whom I am pretty certain for some days to come, and that will be 12 crowns gained at all events."

CHAPTER II.

The Antechamber of M. de Treville.

WE must remember that 12 crowns was just the amount that was left in D'Artagnan's purse.

The host had reckoned upon eleven days of confinement at a crown a day, but he had reckoned without his guest.

On the following morning at 6 o'clock D'Artagnan arose, and, descending to the kitchen, composed his mother's balaam, with which he anointed his numerous wounds, replacing his bandages himself and positively refusing the assistance of any doctor. He was almost cured by the morrow.

But when the time came to pay his reckoning D'Artagnan found nothing in his pocket but his little old velvet purse with the 12 crowns it contained.

As to the letter addressed to M. de Treville, it had disappeared.

The young man commenced his search for the letter with the greatest patience, but when he had come to the conclusion that the letter was not to be found he flew into a rage and threatened to destroy everything in the establishment if his letter were not found.

"My letter of recommendation!" cried D'Artagnan. "My letter of recommendation, or I will spit you all like so many ortolans!"

Unfortunately there was one circumstance which created a powerful obstacle to the accomplishment of this threat, which was, as we have related, that his sword had been in his first conflict broken in two and which he had perfectly forgotten.

"Where is this letter?" cried he. "I warn you that that letter is for M. de Treville, and it must be found. If it is not quickly found he will know how to cause it to be found. I'll answer for it!"

This threat intimidated the host. After the king and the cardinal M. de Treville was the man whose name was perhaps most frequently repeated by the military and even by citizens. He commenced an earnest search for the lost letter.

"Does the letter contain anything valuable?" demanded the host after a few minutes of useless investigation.

"Zounds! I think it does indeed!" cried the Gascon, who reckoned upon this letter for making his way at court. "It contained my fortune. I would rather have lost a thousand pistoles than have lost it."

A ray of light all at once broke upon the mind of the host, as he was giving himself to the devil upon finding nothing.

"That letter is not lost!" cried he. "It has been stolen."

"Stolen! By whom?"

"By the gentleman who was here yesterday. He came down into the kitchen, where your doublet was. He remained there some time alone."

"Then that's the man that has robbed me!" replied D'Artagnan. "I will complain to M. de Treville, and M. de Treville will complain to the king."

He then drew 2 crowns majestically from his purse, gave them to the host and remounted his yellow horse, which bore him without any further accident to the gate of St. Antoine at Paris, where his owner sold him for 3 crowns.

Thus D'Artagnan entered Paris on foot, carrying his little packet under his arm, and walked about till he found an apartment to be let on terms suited to the scantiness of his means. This chamber was a sort of garret situated in the Rue des Fosseux, near the Luxembourg.

As soon as the earnest penny was paid D'Artagnan went to the Quai de Ferraille to have a new blade put to his sword and then returned toward the Louvre, inquiring of the first musketeer he met with for the situation of the hotel of M. de Treville.

M. de Treville, as his family was still called in Gascony, or M. de Treville, as he had ended by styling himself in Paris, had really commenced life as D'Artagnan now did, with out a sou in his pocket, but with a fund of courage, shrewdness and intelligence that makes the poorest Gascon gentleman often derive more in his hope from the paternal inheritance than the richest Pembrokeshire or Berwickshire gentleman derives in reality from his. His insolent bravery, his still more insolent success at a time when blows poured down like hail, had borne him to the top of that ladder called court favor, which he had climbed four steps at a time.

Louis XIII. had a real liking for Treville, a royal liking, a selfish liking. It is true, but which was still a liking. At that unhappy period it was an important consideration to be surrounded by such men as De Treville. Many might take for their device the epithet of strong, which formed the second part of Treville's motto, but very few gentlemen could lay claim to the faithful, which constituted the first. Louis XIII. made De Treville the captain of his musketeers, who were devoted to the king.

On his part and in this respect the cardinal was not behindhand with the king. When he saw the formidable and chosen body by which Louis XIII. surrounded himself, this, second, or rather, this first king of France, became desirous that he, too, should have his guard. These two powerful rivals vied with each other in procuring the most celebrated swordsmen, not only from all the provinces of France, but even from all foreign states. Each boasted the bearing and the courage of his own people, and, while exclaiming loudly against duels and bralls, they excited them secretly to quarrel, deriving an immediate satisfaction or a true regret at the success or defeat of their own combatants. Treville's soldiers formed a legion of devil may care fellows, perfectly undisciplined as regarded every one but himself.

Loose, half drunk, imposing, the king's musketeers, or, rather, M. de Treville's, spread about in the cabarets, in the public walks and the public sports shouting, twisting their mustaches, clanking their swords and taking great pleasure in annoying the guards of M. le Cardinal whenever they could fall in with them, then drawing in the open streets as if it were the best of all possible sports; sometimes killed, but sure in that case to be both wept and avenged; often killing others, but then, certain of not rotting in prison, M. de Treville being there to claim them. M. de Treville, adored and obeyed implicitly, was praised to the highest note by these men.

The court of M. de Treville's house, situated in the Rue du Vieux-Colombier, resembled a camp, and that by 6 o'clock in the morning in summer and 8 o'clock in winter. From fifty to sixty musketeers who appeared to believe each other in order always to present an imposing number, paraded constantly about, armed to the teeth and ready for anything.

The day on which D'Artagnan presented himself the assemblage was imposing, particularly for a provincial who had till that day entertained a very good opinion of himself, felt that he was the object of ridicule.

When arrived at the staircase it was still worse. There were four musketeers on the bottom steps amusing themselves with the following exercise, while ten or twelve of their comrades waited upon the landing place their turns to take their places in the sport.

One of them, placed upon the top stair, naked sword in hand, prevented, or at least endeavored to prevent, the three others from going up.

These three others fenced against him with their agile swords, which D'Artagnan at first took for rolls and believed to be buttoned, but he soon perceived by certain scratches that every weapon was pointed and sharpened and that at each of these scratches not only the spectators, but even the actors themselves laughed like madmen.

On the landing they were no longer fighting, but amused themselves with stories about women and in the antechamber with stories about the court. On the landing D'Artagnan blushed; in the antechamber he trembled. There, to his great astonishment, D'Artagnan heard the cardinal's policy which made all Europe tremble criticised aloud and openly as well as his private life.

"Curses, these fellows will all be either embarrassed or hung," thought the terrified D'Artagnan, "and I, no doubt, with them, for the moment I have either listened to or heard them I shall be held to be an accomplice."

D'Artagnan begged the servant who had put question to him to request a moment's audience of M. de Treville, a request which the other, with an air of protection, promised to convey in time and season.

D'Artagnan, a little recovered from his surprise, had now leisure to study costumes and countenances.

The center of the most animated group was a musketeer of great height, of a haughty countenance and dressed in a costume so peculiar as to attract general attention. He did not wear the uniform cloak, which indeed at that time, less of liberty than of will greater independence, was not obligatory, but a cerulean blue doublet, a little faded and worn, and over this a magnificent baldric worked in gold, which shone like water lilies in the sun. A long cloak of crimson velvet fell in graceful folds from his shoulders, disclosing in front the splendid baldric, from which was suspended a sileant rapier.

just arriving from his province. When he had once passed the massive door, covered with long square headed nails, he fell into the midst of a troop of men of the sword who crossed each other in their passage, calling out, quarrelling and playing tricks one among another. It could not help observing that they turned round to look at him, and for the first time in his life D'Artagnan felt that he was the object of ridicule.

These three others fenced against him with their agile swords, which D'Artagnan at first took for rolls and believed to be buttoned, but he soon perceived by certain scratches that every weapon was pointed and sharpened and that at each of these scratches not only the spectators, but even the actors themselves laughed like madmen.

On the landing they were no longer fighting, but amused themselves with stories about women and in the antechamber with stories about the court. On the landing D'Artagnan blushed; in the antechamber he trembled. There, to his great astonishment, D'Artagnan heard the cardinal's policy which made all Europe tremble criticised aloud and openly as well as his private life.

"Curses, these fellows will all be either embarrassed or hung," thought the terrified D'Artagnan, "and I, no doubt, with them, for the moment I have either listened to or heard them I shall be held to be an accomplice."

D'Artagnan begged the servant who had put question to him to request a moment's audience of M. de Treville, a request which the other, with an air of protection, promised to convey in time and season.

D'Artagnan, a little recovered from his surprise, had now leisure to study costumes and countenances.

The center of the most animated group was a musketeer of great height, of a haughty countenance and dressed in a costume so peculiar as to attract general attention. He did not wear the uniform cloak, which indeed at that time, less of liberty than of will greater independence, was not obligatory, but a cerulean blue doublet, a little faded and worn, and over this a magnificent baldric worked in gold, which shone like water lilies in the sun. A long cloak of crimson velvet fell in graceful folds from his shoulders, disclosing in front the splendid baldric, from which was suspended a sileant rapier.

just arriving from his province. When he had once passed the massive door, covered with long square headed nails, he fell into the midst of a troop of men of the sword who crossed each other in their passage, calling out, quarrelling and playing tricks one among another. It could not help observing that they turned round to look at him, and for the first time in his life D'Artagnan felt that he was the object of ridicule.

When arrived at the staircase it was still worse. There were four musketeers on the bottom steps amusing themselves with the following exercise, while ten or twelve of their comrades waited upon the landing place their turns to take their places in the sport.

One of them, placed upon the top stair, naked sword in hand, prevented, or at least endeavored to prevent, the three others from going up.

BY WALT MASON

The dog is mankind's friend; as such he's known to follow, to love, to follow and defend his master in his sleep. When business is that line is slack, he strows the lawn with honey; when called off, he brings them back, with raw, dead lions and stones. Affection dwells in he's not a fake, his virtues I recall, but all in vain—and so I take the shotgun from the wall.

A CALL-DOWN.

First Delegate—You didn't open your mouth during the whole convention.
Second Delegate—Oh, yes I did. I yawned all through your speech.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY
Avoid rootlessness and change. The reward of careful application to duties awaits you, and also an advance in station. Do not attach too much importance to disappointing experiences with friends.
Those born today will be restless and inclined to think themselves misunderstood. They will take their questions rather seriously.

THEY-FIX-PIPS

The Sergeant—Call in a doctor to that prisoner.
The Lieutenant—Why?
The Sergeant—He has pipe dreams.
The Lieutenant—Then you'd better get a plumber.

Today's Riddle

WHAT SORT OF MEN ARE MOST ABOVE BOARD IN THEIR MOVEMENTS?
(Answer)

LEYDEN

Leyden, June 15.—The corn planting has ended in this vicinity.
Mr. and Mrs. James Humming and family attended the Evansville picnic.
Miss Anna Granback has closed her school in the Leyden district and returned to her home in Afion. She had two pupils, Josephine Barrett and Frances Byrne who finished the course of study and will enter high school in the fall.
A few couples from here attended the Evansville dance.
Plans are being made for a celebration at Leyden, July the fourth.
Miss Luella Drafiuhl and Elizabeth Byrne of Janesville were callers at Leyden Sunday afternoon.
Fred Ross made a business trip to Janesville Tuesday afternoon.
James Humming and family and John Chesbro and a friend made a trip to Lake Koshkonong in the morning.
John Chesbro had the misfortune of breaking two of his ribs while playing on Bert Hoffmann's farm.
Peter and Ella Baum of Center spent Thursday afternoon at the home of Frank Mosher.

Salt in Chimney.
In building a chimney it is recommended to put a quantity of salt into the mortar with which the interior of the chimney is laid. The effect, says the Commoner, will be that there will never be any accumulation of soot in the chimney, for the reason that the salt in the mortar will absorb the moisture on damp days, and the soot, becoming damp, will fall down from the walls of the chimney and may be easily removed.

The Swashbuckler.
The swashbuckling patriot is akin to the religious fanatic; the one can see only his country and the other only his sect. And in both cases the intellectual outlook is generally so narrow that scarcely anything more is revealed to the patriotic or religious fanatic than a distorted view of material greatness or spiritual goodness.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify the Gazette.
The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.
There are any number of con-men in the country who make a living through a so-called worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.
Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.
But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.
The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Would Hardly Go Around.
Willie—Wonder what all the animals did during those forty days in the ark. Tommy—Oh, they just lay around and scratched themselves, I guess. Willie—Scratched themselves nothing! What'd they scratch for when there was only two bones?
